What is PDRN?

Polydeoxyribonucleotide (PDRN) is a low-molecular-weight DNA complex extracted from salmon and trout. Its double-helix structure is similar to human-derived DNA. PDRN promotes cell activity, collagen synthesis, anti-inflammation, hyperpigmentation treatment, soft-tissue regeneration, skin revitalization and anti-aging.

IN LYSONOME FORMULAS, PDRN IS LISTED AS SODIUM DNA.

01 Skin regeneration

Promotes skin-cell regeneration and improves skin texture.

02 Collagen & elastin

Increases collagen and elastin production by activating microvessels and fibroblasts.

03 DNA synthesis

Promotes DNA synthesis, angiogenesis and tissue regeneration.

04 Wrinkles & hydration

Reduces fine lines and wrinkles and strengthens the skin's ability to retain moisture.
